Science Societies

Attend the 2025 spring SASES meeting

All undergraduate student members and their advisers are invited

January 27, 2025

Photo of students attending the 2018 Spring SASES Meeting at University of Nebraska–Lincoln. If this photo is not high enough resolution, there is one from the May 2018 issue that you can use.

The Agronomy and Precision Agricultural Club at South Dakota State University invites all undergraduate student members and their advisors to attend the 2025 spring meeting of SASES (Students of Agronomy, Soils, and Environmental Science) on Apr. 10–12, 2025.

Registration will be open January 20 through March 1 and costs $65.

"Register for the spring SASES meeting here by March !"

Some of the activity highlights include:

- Soil- and crop-judging competitions
- Banquet with keynote speakers Brian and Darin Hefty (as seen on Ag PhD)
- Swing dance with address given by the Millennial Farmer
- Breakout sessions with industry professionals, professors, and others

Along with a full slate of activities, several exciting tour itineraries have been planned for attendees. Some of the destinations include:

- Hefty Seeds, home of the Ag PhD TV show.
- Raven Industries, where balloons for the Macy's Day Parade are produced.
- Bayer Crop Science, state-of-the-art research facility.

- Agtegra Innovation Center, center for planter updates, precision upgrades, and various test plots.

The spring SASES meeting is sure to be an exciting opportunity to connect with fellow undergraduate members, professors, and even future employers (it's never too early to start thinking about next summer's internship)!

Text © . The authors. CC BY-NC-ND 4.0. Except where otherwise noted, images are subject to copyright. Any reuse without express permission from the copyright owner is prohibited.